MANY ADULTERATED FOODS.
One-Half of Products Examined at Burlington Below Standard and Some Entirely Artificial.

That many adulterated foods are being sold in Vermont is shown by the first report made at the state laboratory of hygiene, which has been making examinations under the provisions of the pure food law passed at the last session of the legislature. Since the law went into effect, 115 different food products have been analyzed, and of these, 57 have been found below standard while some have been found to be composed of entirely different substances than were represented. The products analyzed and the number found below standard were as follows:

Maple sugar, 29 specimens, of which five were adulterated. Of this number two were syrups bottled by concerns outside the state and sent back here for sale.

Baking powders, 14 specimens, eight of which were below standard.

Oysters, 12 specimens, of which two were found to contain preservatives. By mixing preservatives with oysters the use of ice is done away with and oysters of any age can be sold.

Vanilla extract, eight specimens, four of which were found to be entirely artificial, while one was pure but very weak.

Coffee, four specimens, all of which were found to be coffee.

Leonard extract, 19 specimens, 14 of which were had, three of them being entirely artificial.

When the bulletin is issued next month the names of all concerns involved will be made public and unless the products are withdrawn from the market prosecutions will follow.

Claims That State's Attorney Jackson Is an Alien.

Charles A. Phelps, manager of the branch stock office of H. R. Leighton & Co. of Barre, has sent a petition to Attorney General Fitts of Brattleboro to have proceedings instituted against State's Attorney S. Hollister Jackson as a right to hold that office.

It will be remembered that in the December term of court, Justice A. A. Phelps, who was elected to that office, and he not at the present time. He says he was born a subject of Queen Victoria and is now a subject of King Edward VII.

It will be remembered that in the December term of court, Justice A. A. Phelps, who was elected to that office, and he not at the present time. He says he was born a subject of Queen Victoria and is now a subject of King Edward VII.

Should the attorneys for the relator prove that Mr. Jackson is an alien it would not only result in the office of state's attorney becoming vacant, but would also prevent him from practicing as an attorney, as the Vermont bar rules require that an attorney shall be a citizen.

Gift of $50,000 for Montpelier Seminary.

D. K. Parsons of Hinsdale, Ill., has offered $50,000 to Montpelier seminary on condition that $100,000 be raised for the institution within a year.

Rev. E. A. Bishop, the principal, is working hard to carry out the provisions necessary to make the gift a reality.

He is making his headquarters in Chicago and will go to St. Paul and Minneapolis while he is in the west. Dr. Parsons was born in Bradford, Vt., and attended the Vermont Methodist seminary when it was located in Middlebury. Later he graduated from the Woodstock medical school and practiced in Chicago, Mass., before locating in Chicago, where he amassed a large fortune in real estate. He has given several million dollars to educational institutions, mostly small colleges. He recently gave $50,000 each to the Methodist and Congregational churches in Bradford.

Health Officers' School Will Be Held at Burlington June 19-22.

The annual school of instruction of the health officers of Vermont will be held in Burlington at the armory of Company D from June 19 to 22 inclusive. A varied program is being prepared and speakers of national reputation have been engaged.

Among the speakers already engaged are: Dr. Donald Lewis, health commissioner of New York city; Dr. A. C. Abbott, health officer in Philadelphia and professor of bacteriology at the University of Pennsylvania; H. W. Clark, chemist for the Massachusetts board of health.

The Columbian Marble company of Rutland, of which J. F. Manning is president, will soon erect a new mill at an expense of $60,000. The mill force of the enlarged plant will be increased by 100 hands.

Charles Shaw, better known as "Dustin," found a very rare coin last Tuesday while planting tomatoes near Hunt's greenhouse in Middlebury. It is a large copper penny, bearing the date of 1786, and in good state of preservation. It was issued at a time when Vermont was a sovereign state. On one side are the words "Vermont 1777" and on the other, with the date 1786. This side shows a crude engraving of a side of a hill, surmounted with pine trees and the sun rising behind them. On the reverse side are the words "Quarta Decima Stella," showing an eye surrounded by a large 13-pointed star and 13 small stars.

Rebekah officers were chosen as follows at the recent state meeting held in Burlington: President, Mrs. Corneilia S. Bond of St. Johnsbury; vice president, Miss Mabel H. Gleason of Rutland; secretary, Mrs. Louise L. Boyce of Barre; treasurer, Mrs. Ella Fanning of Lyndonville; conductor, Mrs. Susan Keach of Brattleboro; marshal, Mrs. Mabel Dane of Newport; inside guardian, Mrs. Emma Gates of Ludlow; outside guardian, Miss Olive Sanborn of St. Johnsbury; chaplain, Mrs. Frances Stone of Springfield. The report of the secretary showed the number of lodges 57; members 4863, including 1924 brothers and 2939 sisters. Ten lodges were instituted in Vermont during the year.

John G. Dater told Secretary Taft of the publication of the charges against Loomis.

It has been developed that the President yielded his position in the canal commission for the sake of a place in Congress. His opponents had planned to occupy the extra session of Congress with the discussion of the purchase of supplies to the extent of the rate question, and his announcement puts a quietus on their schemes.

MRS. ROGERS'S LIFE

Arguments of Attorneys Before Supreme Court Judges

Atty-Gen. Fitts Reviewed Testimony of Each Affidavit to Show Insufficiency for New Trial.

A hearing by the supreme court of Vermont on a petition for a new trial of Mrs. Mary H. Rogers, was held at Montpelier Friday.

Thomas W. Moloney of Rutland, who is the attorney for Mrs. Rogers, presented affidavits of physicians and other persons to show that the doctors who performed the autopsy on Rogers's body did not report a fracture of the skull at the base of the brain, which subsequently was discovered.

Mr. Moloney then made an extended argument in favor of a new trial, contending that the government had endeavored to prove that Rogers died of suffocation, whereas it was possible that the injury to the skull might have caused death. He alluded to the confession of Leon Perham, the alleged accomplice of Mrs. Rogers, who is serving a term of life imprisonment for that crime. He spoke of what he termed the low order of intelligence of Mrs. Rogers, of insanity alleged to be in her family, and of her weak physical condition at the time of the murder.

Mr. Moloney stated that if violence sufficient to fracture the skull was applied, then the whole testimony of Leon Perham, which afforded the principal ground for the conviction of Mrs. Rogers, was false. Mr. Moloney claimed that Perham's affidavit in which he admitted that he falsified "to save his own neck" it plain that Rogers was not killed in the manner shown at the trial.

Regarding the insanity theory, counsel cited affidavits to show that Rogers had believed his wife insane and had reported it to a physician five days before he was killed, and that two days before his death this physician had examined her and found her to be suffering from a form of insanity. Attorney J. H. Senter of Montpelier also presented an argument in favor of granting the petition.

Attorney-General Clarke C. Fitts of Brattleboro argued in behalf of the state opposing the petition for a new trial. Sheriff H. H. Peck of Windsor county, who did it well to be hanged Mrs. Rogers, if the sentence is carried out, was present at the hearing, and Gov. Charles J. Bell arrived there in time to attend the afternoon session of court. In his argument Attorney-General Fitts reviewed the testimony of each affidavit to show its insufficiency for granting a new trial. The contention of the state was, in brief, that the fracture of the skull of Mrs. Rogers was made by the physicians who performed the autopsy, in removing the brain, which they found to be normal, thereby disproving the theory that Rogers had received a wound on the head severe enough to cause death; that the evidence did not prove insanity; that Mrs. Rogers was in Brattleboro two days before her husband's death, thus contradicting the evidence of the Hooisick Falls (N. Y.) physician, who deposed that he examined her for symptoms of insanity two days before the murder, and, lastly, that the statements of Leon Perham to the effect that he has testified falsely in the county court could not be relied upon, the state contending the Perham was mentally weak and would give any desired answer under duress.

At the conclusion of the arguments the court took the case under consideration, announcing that its decision would be announced later.
